

Daily Planet

Customer and Employee Relations Directorate, Internal Relations and Communications Department

Tuesday, March 25

2003

Dunnington named NASA's new chief information officer

NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe has named Patricia L. Dunnington as the Agency's new chief information officer. "Pat brings a wealth of experience and expertise to our management team," O'Keefe said. "She has an intimate knowledge of the Agency and she will be a key leader, planner and manager as we continue to apply cutting-edge information technology to NASA." Dunnington has been NASA's deputy chief information officer since August. She also has served as the chief information officer of Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va.

All contents of Federal Express packages must be listed on Form 4182 before shipping

'Take Our Children
to Work Day' T-shirt orders due by April 3. For details, go to <http://inside.msfc.nasa.gov/CHILDREN> or see 'Inside Marshall'

Employee Assistance Program open to Marshall employees

The Employee Assistance Program is open to Marshall employees and their family members who may be dealing with issues of stress and depression. Psychologist Dr. Bruce Mathers is available by appointment at 544-7549 during weekdays. The Marshall Center also is offering Employee Assistance Program services through a professional counseling service for after-duty hours and weekends by calling 1-888-807-7997.

<http://inside.msfc.nasa.gov>